

FPA Global Equity ETF Announcement

2023 Year-End Capital Gain Estimates

The estimated ranges for capital gain distributions as of September 30, 2023 are listed below. Actual year-end distributions will be based on gains and losses realized through October 31. Estimated distribution rates on a per-share basis for dividend income will be available in December. The FPA Global Equity ETF's longer-term approach to investing means that the capital gains realized in a particular year can be the result of an investment held over an extended period of time. The amount of capital gain distributions will vary year over year since the distributions are based on net capital gain realized each year.

Distributions may include the net income from dividends and interest earned by Fund securities, net realized capital gains, or in certain cases it may include a return of capital. The Fund may also pay a special distribution at the end of a calendar year to comply with federal tax requirements. All registered investment companies, including closed-end funds and exchange traded funds (ETFs), periodically distribute profits they earn to investors. By law, if a fund has net gains from the sale of securities, or if it earns dividends and interest from securities, it must pass substantially all of those earnings to its shareholders or it will be subject to corporate income taxes and excise taxes. These taxes would, in effect, reduce investors' total return. For more information, including how these distributions are taxed, please see the Fund's Prospectus.

To receive a distribution, you must have been a registered shareholder of the Fund on the record date. Distributions are paid to shareholders on the payment date. Past distributions are not indicative of future results.

First Pacific Advisors, LP does not provide legal, accounting, or tax advice. Please contact your accounting or tax advisor and/or legal counsel to review the impact of any distributions on your situation and discuss possible tax strategies.

Dividends and other distributions by a fund are generally treated under the Internal Revenue Code as received by the shareholders at the time the dividend or distribution is made. However, any dividend or distribution declared by a fund in October, November or December of any calendar year and payable to shareholders of record on a specified date in such a month shall be deemed to have been received by each shareholder on December 31 of such calendar year and to have been paid by the fund no later than such December 31, provided such dividend is actually paid by the fund during January of the following calendar year
